

Quinntavion Avent

Mrs. Feher

English

10/01/2019

A Hard Head Makes A Soft A$$

Gather around kids let me tell you a story about lying it can be beneficial at the time but afterwards its hell. When I was younger, I lied about a lot of things. I used to lie about my report cards, and a lot of other petty lies but this one was different. I remember that day I just knew something was off. And let me tell you'll I'm in the 5th grade.

So I was walking in the classroom and I could already tell the teacher was in a bad mood. So my friends and I, we was just talking like usual but we was talking a lot but we wasn't doing anything wrong. Then out of know where she just yelled "Shut Up!!", and everyone just looking like what is going on. So my friend was like you shut up and then she sent him out of the class so we all just start talking stuff in the back and Then I yelled "Bitch!!" and she made everyone in the back stay because she didn't know which one of us said it. The principle came in and called all of our parents and we cried like babies. So, when my mom got to school she was mad because she had to give off of work to deal with my bull crap. He told my mom everything I be doing in school and that the students said I was the one who called the teacher that but I tried to lie and say they only saying it was me because I'm black and then the principal said y'all was all black. So they found it was me and I got sent home.

The Car ride was quiet and short to my house. I knew as soon as I got how tense it was in the air. As I was going to my room and my mom was heading upstairs, I could hear the anger in her footsteps and she walking in my room with a shiny, black, leather belt. She was gripping that belt with so much force. She started yelling at me and I could hear the frustration and disappointment in her voice. She gripped my arm so hard to hold me still. Those 13, big strokes I took the behind, my butt hurt like hell. My ass was sore for like 4 days. But afterwards I took the best nap ever. When I woke up my mama came in my room sat on my bad and had a long talk to me about me lying and there's no point because everything comes to the light and every lie you hold will come out. So don't lie just tell the truth. It will set you free!